Art Unit 1713

1. This application contains inventions which are distinct insofar as they do not have the same special technical features wherein the composition of the invention is formed into different and mutually exclusive articles. Examples of these articles are a weather strip, a hose, a shock absorber, a rubber coupling and many others are listed. Each of these utility final products has distinct and separate technical features which could lend patentability to the claimed composition. Applicants are, therefore, required to elect a single final product to be examined along with the composition itself.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

2. This application contains improper multiple dependent claims which, if action on the merits were to occur, would be objected to. These claims are improper insofar as they are multiple dependent claims which depend from multiple dependent claims, and they include claims 8, 9, 11-87, 94 and 101. Applicants are advised that in order to have these claims considered on the merits they must be put into proper form.
